Paul praised for running allergy support group

A support group aimed at individuals or families with severe allergies holds its next meeting on Saturday, 25th March.

Congleton dad Paul Moses formed the Allergy Cheshire support group because his four-year-old son James, a pupil at Quinta Primary, suffers from severe anaphylaxis.

Now Mr Moses, (54), of West Heath, has the help of the Anaphylaxis Campaign, the only UK-wide charity to support people with life-threatening allergies.

Mr Moses said: "I got involved with the campaign after my son James' first anaphylactic reaction at seven months, which was severe. Doctors in A&E failed to diagnose allergy, so it was left to me to search the internet for his symptoms and understand what had happened."

"I was able to get a referral to an allergy specialist where he was diagnosed with wheat and peanut allergies."

Food allergies are thought to affect around 8% of children and 4% of adults. Hospitals in England dealt with more than 20,000 admissions for allergies in the 12 months between February 2013 and February 2014.

Mr Moses continued: "We know of others in our area similarly affected so I have decided to set up a local group, with the support of specialists at our local allergy centre."

"Hopefully the group will help to raise awareness of those at risk of severe allergy, and offer a support network to people in the local community who might otherwise feel isolated and unsupported."

The meeting on Saturday, 25th March, is between 10.30am and 12.30pm in The Lecture Theatre (first floor), Macclesfield District General Hospital, Victoria Road, Macclesfield, Cheshire SK10 3BL.

Anaphylaxis Campaign CLO Lyne Regent said: "It's brilliant that Paul runs a support group for us in Macclesfield. Many people in the general population do not understand just how serious allergy and anaphylaxis can be."

"Our support groups, like the one Paul is running, provide a vital touch point for affected families and individuals and are a really positive way for them to support each other."

Cooking course serves menu of culinary skills

The next basic cookery course starts next month.

Since the Cooking From Scratch project began last year, Cheshire Learning Partnership has brought back basic cookery skills to more than 140 families, creating more than 3,000 quick, healthy and budget friendly meals.

The next six-week course starts on Wednesday at Ruby's Fund Social Café, Meridian House, Roe Street, Congleton. Would-be chefs can choose either an afternoon course running from 1.30pm to 3.30pm or an evening course running from 7pm to 9pm.

At a recent participatory budget day held at Congleton Town Hall, local residents voted for Cooking From Scratch to be continued in the town, awarding £2,500 for future projects. The course is an opportunity to learn some cookery skills and find out how to eat well on a budget.

Adele Cooke, managing director of the partnership, said: "We are thrilled with the outcomes and feedback from the course and excited to be delivering new skills to more families in Congleton this spring."
